

NATURE CLUB WILL COME HERE SUNDAY

Party of Indianapolis People Will Spend Day in Beauty Spots in Jackson County Hills.

TRIP TO BE MADE IN AUTOS

Number of Local People Will Furnish Machines and Assist in Entertaining Visitors.

R. A. Cox has received word that the members of the Indiana Nature Club, which is composed very largely of Indianapolis people, will spend next Sunday in Jackson county. Dr. Frank Wynn, of Indianapolis, is president of the club whose members spend several days each summer in inspecting the most parts beautiful of the state. The party will arrive here at 9:45 o'clock and will return on the late afternoon train.

The trip through Jackson county will include Brownstown, Clearspring, Houston, Kurtz and Free-town. A number of local people who are interested in the work the club have charge of the arrangements for the day. Automobiles will be provided here for the trip. Eighteen cars have been offered for the day's trip and the party will be divided so that one or more Seymour people are in each machine. In this way the trip will have an enjoyable social feature.

The members of the club do not rely entirely upon the automobiles for it is a part of the day's outing to walk to places which may be especially attractive to them. The side trips from the principal towns to be visited will be arranged after the party arrives. The visitors make their own arrangements for dinner.

Each year the Indiana Nature Club issues a booklet describing their work during the twelve months previous. The year's schedule of places to be visited is also prepared in advance. The trip to Seymour and Jackson county was fixed for next Sunday and in accordance with the plans, Mr. Cox was notified that the party would come at that time.

The Club makes such a trip about every other Sunday during the summer months. The purpose of the organization is to give the members an opportunity to become familiar with the beauties of Indiana many of which cannot be seen from trains, traction lines and even the principal highways. This is the first time that the Club has come here and local people are endeavoring to make the trip next Sunday as pleasant as possible. It is expected that fifteen or twenty automobiles will be used to convey the visitors over the western part of the county.

CAR LEAVING DRIVEWAY
HITS BOY IN AUTOMOBILE

James, Son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Shields, Has Miraculous Escape from Serious Injury.

James, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Shields, North Walnut street, had a miraculous escape from serious injury late Thursday. He was riding in a small automobile on the sidewalk in front of the home of John C. Groub, which adjoins the Shields home. Just as the boy approached the driveway Mr. Groub was leaving in his closed car and the machine caught the small automobile and its youthful driver between the front springs. Mr. Groub was unable to see the boy approaching because of a hedge in front of his lawn.

Fortunate the closed car caught the small automobile at a height so that it was carried forward instead of being turned over and rolled. The boy retained his seat in the car and escaped without a scratch. The small machine was carried into the street, but as Mr. Groub was driving slowly, he soon stopped the car.

Funeral of Mrs. Fetting.

The funeral of Mrs. Victor Fetting who died Thursday afternoon after an illness of several days with double pneumonia, will be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock from the Saint Ambrose Catholic church, the Rev. Father C. J. Conrad officiating. Burial in the Catholic cemetery.

Friends desiring to view the remains, may call at the Fetting home, 403 West Sixth street, this evening between the hours of 6 and 9 o'clock.

JUNE SETTLEMENT
SHEETS COMPLETED

Various Units in County Receive First Semi-Annual Distribution of Tax Receipts.

COMPUTED BY THE AUDITOR

Amounts Received by Different Corporations Are Considerably Larger Than Last Year.

The settlement sheets showing the distribution of taxes for the first six months of this year have been completed by Albert Luedtke, county auditor, and C. H. Lautzenhiser, deputy. The auditor computes the sums which are due the different townships and other taxing units in the county. Most of the warrants have already been issued.

The disbursements for the first half of the present year are considerably higher than for the same period in 1919. This is due to the higher expenses of government, principally for wages, materials and teachers' salaries. The salaries of officials have practically remained the same as these are fixed by law and cannot be changed during the terms of incumbents.

The following table shows the amount of taxes in the June settlement including state, county, township and corporation taxes. It also

BABY, ASLEEP IN ROOM, IS OVERCOME BY ESCAPING GAS

Fifteen-Months' Old Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Droege, South Walnut Street, Asphyxiated.

Bernice Irene, fifteen-months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Droege, South Walnut street, was a victim of gas asphyxiation late Thursday. The body was found about 5 o'clock and apparently death had come sometime before.

Mr. and Mrs. Droege had intended to leave at midnight for Milwaukee for a visit with Mr. Droege's parents. Mrs. Droege spent a part of the afternoon in packing her clothing and making arrangements for the trip. She had brushed a coat suit and after placing it on a coat hanger had hung it on a gas chandelier on the wall in the room where the baby was sleeping. She was accustomed to hanging light clothing on the chandelier. The hanger, it is thought, came in contact with the valve stem on the gas pipe, turning it so that gas escaped from the burner. She did not detect the escaping gas when she left the room.

In order to keep the baby as quiet as possible in preparation for its night's journey the doors and windows in the room were closed. Later in the afternoon Mrs. Droege reentered the room to see if the baby had awakened and as soon as she opened the door she noticed the strong odor of gas. She hurried to the bed but the baby had apparently died at least half an hour before. Mrs. Droege was overcome with grief. The parents have the sympathy of their many friends. Besides the baby, Mr. and Mrs. Droege are the parents of an older daughter.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the residence with the Rev. George Baumgart, pastor of the Lutheran church at White Creek, officiating. Services will be conducted in English. Burial at the Riverview cemetery.

July 4 Basket Meeting.

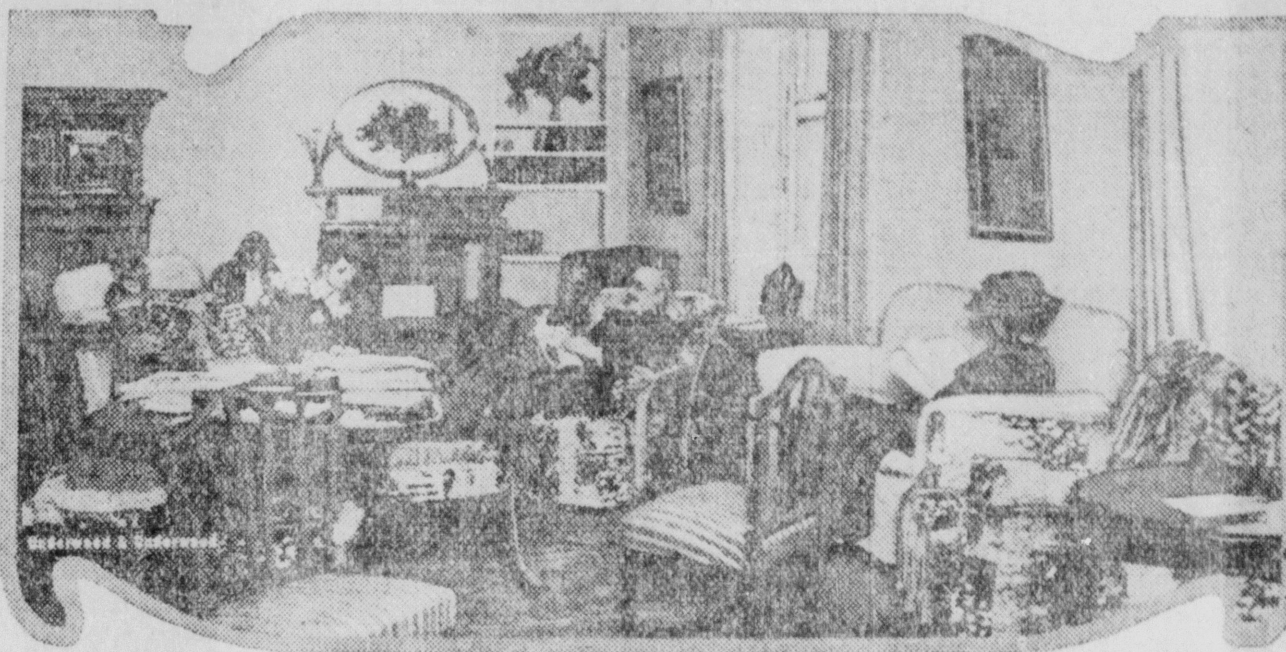

An all day Fourth of July basket meeting will be held at Peter's Switch Sunday, July 4. Rev. George Church, of Indianapolis, assisted by other ministers, will have charge of the services. Everybody is invited to attend with well-filled baskets and enjoy the day and the services.

M. E. CONFERENCE
PLANS ANNOUNCED

The Rev. L. T. Freeland, District Superintendent, Arranges Program for Session.

TO BE HELD AT CHARLESTOWN

Ministers and Representatives of Various Churches in District to be in Attendance.

The Rev. L. T. Freeland, of this city, superintendent of Seymour district of the Indiana Methodist Episcopal conference, has announced the program for the annual district meeting which will be held at Charlestown June 29-30. All of the ministers in the district and representatives of the various churches are expected to be in attendance.

The first session will be held Tuesday afternoon, The Rev. F. A. Guthrie, of Charlestown, will conduct the devotions, after which the conference will be formally organized. The Rev. J. W. Duncan is scheduled for an address on the "Superannuate" after which, Dr. Paul L. Vogt will discuss rural church activities. A round table discussion on "How Can We Get and Hold Epworthians" will be held.

The business of the conference will be taken up at 4:45 o'clock and the district stewards will meet at 5:15 o'clock. A meeting of all committees is announced for the same hour.

The evening service will be devoted to "Over Sea Talks" by C. P. Gibbs, W. T. Jones and J. T. Seuil.

A communion service will follow the committee sessions on Wednesday morning, after which a business session will be conducted. "Should the Church Building be Used Seven Days in the Week?" is the subject of the forum at 9:30 o'clock. Tabulating committees will be asked to report at 9:45 o'clock.

"The Attitude of the Church in Respect to Amusements" will be discussed by the ministers Wednesday morning. The question of interesting men in the church, conserving the results of a revival and personal experience will also be discussed.

The first number of the afternoon program will be an address by R. C. Minton, of the Indiana Anti-Saloon

AS PARTY PEACE MAKER

Thomas R. Marshall Says He is not Attending Convention As Candidate.

By United Press.

San Francisco, June 25—Vice President Thomas R. Marshall is attending the convention not as a candidate but as a peace maker, he declared today. "I am here," he said, "as delegate at large from Indiana, to do all that can be done to reconcile the conflicting view of Democrats from the Atlantic to the Pacific, to get a safe and sane platform, to put a good man on it—and let him go to it."

"There must be compromises," he stated, very decidedly. "All of life is a compromise. And I hope that if we are wrong we will say it in such terms that the American people will know it."

"Originally," he said, "I did not favor the dry amendment. But it is now a part of the constitution and so long as it stays there it should be enforced. I am obeying laws every day that I have no respect for."

The vice president who was in a good humor, refused to consider himself as candidate.

"I am not seeking the nomination. I have not the remotest idea that my name will be presented to the convention."

THIRD PARTY ADVOCATES
TURN TO PROHIBITION

Deadlock at San Francisco Would Give Them New Encouragement.

By United Press.

Chicago, June 25.—Liberals, who propose launching a third party here next month by amalgamating radical organizations may bid for support from prohibitionists by adopting a dry plank in its platform, it was learned here today. With the wet and dry in San Francisco apparently at a deadlock, leaders of the proposed third party are hoping the deadlock continues to enable them to step in the breach and pick off the prohibition vote with a more favorable dry plank in its platform. Believing that their disappointment at the hands of Republicans and a similar reception from the Democrats will cause drys to turn to a party which will take a more favorable stand on the prohibition, liberal leaders are considering the adoption of a strong dry plank in the proposed new party's platform.

The evening service will be devoted to "Over Sea Talks" by C. P. Gibbs, W. T. Jones and J. T. Seuil.

A communion service will follow the committee sessions on Wednesday morning, after which a business session will be conducted. "Should the Church Building be Used Seven Days in the Week?" is the subject of the forum at 9:30 o'clock. Tabulating committees will be asked to report at 9:45 o'clock.

CONVENTION AT VINCENNES

Stanley A. Switzer, of Seymour, is Without Opposition for State Treasurer.

Vincennes, Ind., June 25.—With spirited contests on for various high offices in the American Legion, Department of Indiana, the second annual convention of that organization, which opens here Monday for two days, and the first yearly encampment of Indiana service men, which continues through June 30, already have aroused general interest among the Legion posts of the entire state.

Greatest interest centers in the race for Indiana department commander, in which race Col. Gignilliat, of Culver, and William Betz, of Vincennes, are avowed rivals, with a number of possible entries from other directions. Col. Gignilliat has opened headquarters here, as has Mr. Betz.

The office of adjutant, with its $250 monthly pay attached, is attracting some notice, and among those who are seeking the place are the incumbent: L. Russell Newgent, of Indianapolis, and Morris Levy, of Evansville. In the last day or two reports have come indicating that the adjutantcy will have a big field of aspirants by the time the issue is put before the delegates.

PRONOUNCED WET AND DRY
FIGHT IS IN PROSPECT

Democratic Candidates May Find Themselves Lined Up for Prohibition Battle.

By United Press.

San Francisco, June 25.—The impression grew along presidential row today that the candidates for the Democratic nomination would find themselves lined up in a wet and dry battle at the outset of the balloting. Opposing factions apparently are determined to settle the issue in the selection of a nominee, as well as in adoption of a platform. Some veteran politicians forecast the possible program thus:

The "wets" would get behind Governor James M. Cox, and the "drys" behind Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, on the first ballot.

Eventually, it is believed, one side or the other would be signally defeated. The assumption is that if Cox should fall, Governor Edward L. Edwards, Vice-President Thomas Marshall, Governor Alfred E. Smith and Senator Gilbert Hitchcock would go with him.

On the same basis defeat of Palmer would be expected practically to eliminate Senator Robert L. Owen, Wm. J. Bryan, James Gerard, Secretary of Agriculture E. T. Meredith, Homer S. Cummings, Senator Carter Glass and Senator F. M. Simmons. The candidates in the winning faction then would fight it out.

IMMEDIATE AWARD
BY BOARD IS ASKED

Railroad Union Leaders Meet in Chicago to Consider Next Step. in Wage Demand.

HINTS OF STRIKES HEARD

Suggested That Referendum Be Ordered or Strikers Be Expelled From Brotherhoods.

By United Press.

Chicago, June 25.—Railroad union leaders met here today to consider action to force an immediate award from the railroad labor board on demands of two million workers for an annual wage increase of $1,000,000,000.

Hints of strikes were heard but no officials would support them. They declined to make any statement in advance of their meeting.

Threatened with disruption of its organization by the increasing number of railroad workers who are quitting their jobs to join "outlaws" in protecting the delay in fixing wage increases demanded for them a year ago, the Brotherhoods were expected to do one of two things:

Take a referendum among the workers on the question of calling a strike to force an immediate award of wage increases or .

Issue an ultimatum to prevent strikers and that they will be expelled from the union ranks unless they return to work immediately.

It is possible that while the meeting is on word may be received from President Wilson fixing a time for the award to be made or announcing a temporary increase. Chairman R. M. Barton yesterday wired the president in answer to the latter request that the board speed up and it is held probable that Barton's answer may serve as a basis for the fixing of a temporary award to abate the restless feeling among railroad workers.

While the union leaders are meeting "outlaw" union chiefs will gather to discuss steps to be taken to force their recognition by the board. A movement is quietly being pushed to form one big union of railroad employees and the outlaws are believed to be in hearty support of it.

Meantime the labor board is hurrying its efforts to reach a decision. Board members believe they are being made the "goat" for past blunders and are said to highly resent demands that they rush a decision.

One member pointed out that the government had had more than a year to deal with the workers' demands and had been unable to do anything.

"Now after holding hearings for six weeks, we are expected to study the data presented and then agree on a decision in a few days," he said. "We have about one hundred questions to be dealt and they can't be disposed of in a few weeks."

Chairman R. M. Barton admitted today he had wired President Wilson an answer to his telegram urging an early decision, but refused to say what its contents were.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, June 25.—Jesse Eschbach, chief of the state board of accounts, will be speaker of the house of representatives at the proposed special session of the Indiana legislature, if that body elects him, he said today.

"If the house of representatives wants me to be speaker I will serve in that capacity," Eschbach said today. "If it does not it will be all right with me. I am not a candidate for the place."

Eschbach has served as speaker at several of the recent sessions. His statement cleared up much uncertainty around the proposed session which Governor Goodrich has announced he will call to appropriate money for the state institutions.

That the call will not go out before next Monday was indicated by state house officials today.

BRYAN WILL TRY TO OBTAIN CONTROL

Commoner Will Face Hard Battle in Attempt to Dominate Democratic Convention.

WILSON'S MEN IN SADDLE

Homer S. Cummings Will Be Temporary Chairman— Defeat for Nebrakan.

By United Press.

San Francisco, June 25.—William J. Bryan arriving here today faces one of the hardest fights of his career to wrest from the administration control of the Democratic national convention.

The convention as at present organized is practically solidly in charge of the friends of President Wilson and the program is to put it on record as indorsing the executive's policies, particularly the league of nations and to go into the campaign on that issue.

Bryan is believed to be determined to break up this control prevent the convention from flatly indorsing the league and making the race on Wilson's record and to inject a number of new issues into the situation. When he steps from the train in San Francisco this afternoon, however, he will find his opponents who have been on the ground for two weeks apparently "sitting pretty" and confident that the commoner's eleventh hour arrival will not seriously annoy them.

The convention situation is: The temporary chairman will be Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the national committee, whose resignation Bryan demanded several months ago.

Cummings has prepared a keynote speech applauding the record of the administration it is understood and putting forward the league issues. The permanent chairmanship is scheduled to go to Bainbridge Colby secretary of state who was appointed by President Wilson after he practically removed Robert Lansing because he disagreed with the executive. Colby is now on his way here from Washington and if elected he is expected to make an extemporaneous speech which will amount to a statement from the president to the convention.

One chairmanship of the important committee on resolutions is scheduled to go to Carter Glass, of Virginia, who is now on the ground with the league of nations platform plank adopted by the Virginia state convention and approved by the president as a model for the one he wants to go into the national platform.

Another evidence of administration control, it is predicted will be seen today in the action of the national committee on the Georgia contest where administration and anti-administration delegates are fighting for seats. The anti administration delegates are expected to be denied admission. Senator Reed who is antiadministration stands practically no chance of being seated from the fifth Missouri district according to present indications. Into this situation comes Bryan. Administration leaders are so confident that he will be impotent they are inclined to laugh at any possibility of his changing the existing order. But the Commoner is expected to get into speedy touch with leaders who are against the administration program and endeavor to organize an effective opposition. It is understood that Bryan has some platform planks of his own, including one for government control of railroads and for a national net work of good roads and while not desiring the convention to go on record against the league of nations he probably will advocate "a middle course" plank that would push that issue into the back ground.

Chairman R. M. Barton admitted today he had wired President Wilson an answer to his telegram urging an early decision, but refused to say what its contents were.

Telephone Rate-Making

The day of guessing is gone!

Forty years' experience has clearly shown that telephone rates must be sufficient to afford a revenue that will pay all expenses as well as return a reasonable profit to the owners.

The cost of a telephone plant is now accurately known, and so is the life of its various parts. Their replacement is a constant expense.

The present rates do not measure up to the present day conditions. They were inadequate before the war. Today they do not keep "the wheels" of the telephone system moving.

Inadequate rates will not give satisfactory telephone service to the people of Southern Indiana these times. They must be made adequate to furnish a high standard of service.

CASE WAS GIVEN UP AS HOPELESS

"It Seemed To Be Just What I Needed," Says Mrs. Maxine Katz.

"My weight has actually increased sixteen pounds but I am not much surprised, for I have been eating three hearty meals a day and picking up ever since I finished my first bottle of Tanlac," said Mrs. Maxine Katz, 437 East New York street, Indianapolis, Ind.

"My neighbors all know what Tanlac has done for me and what I think of it, for when I visit one of them I hardly get seated before I start talking about it, as I am so happy over regaining my health I just can't help telling everyone who will listen to me. For the past five years I had not been able to eat a single meal without its causing me great distress. I didn't dare eat anything solid and even the lightest foods would nearly kill me. Just because I ate anything at all gas began to accumulate, I would have severe cramping pains and could hardly get my breath. I also suffered with splitting headaches just about all the time and at times my head felt like it would burst. I could get but little sleep, many a night not being able to sleep a wink all night long, and in the mornings I felt so tired and wornout it seemed like I would be compelled to go back to bed again. I had lost so much weight and was in such a run-down, weakened condition that most of the time when I started to do my housework I would become so tired I just had to stop and give it up entirely, and quite often was in bed unable to get around at all for days at a time.

"Tanlac seemed to be exactly the medicine I needed, so I stuck to it, but, to be honest about it, I never expected it to so completely restore my health as it has. At first I was particular about what I ate for I had no idea any medicine could get my stomach in such good condition so quickly as Tanlac had but I soon found I could eat just anything I wanted without suffering from it a particle afterward. I never have a sign of gas or those dreadful cramping pains and have not had a headache since I started taking Tanlac. My whole system seems to have been built up. I sleep well, always get up feeling greatly refreshed, and have regained my strength so it is no trouble for me to do my housework. In fact, I haven't felt better in years than I do now, and I am so delighted with what Tanlac has done for me I intend to praise it as long as I live."

Tanlac is sold in Seymour by Maxon's Pharmacy, by C. W. Taulman at Crothersville and by Chas. Brock at Brownstown.

that the company is in need of higher rates to maintain its exchanges.

The testimony of Mr. Atwater was sensational. He told the commission that the Bell Company had set out to deliberately neglect the service and that the system in Indianapolis could not be restored to its normal efficiency within several years' time. There have been indications that some of the larger utility concerns in the country have adopted this plan of securing increased revenue, but this is the first instance of a "show down."

Public utilities have a duty to perform to the public. They are entitled to a reasonable return upon their investment and no fair citizen would expect a company to operate at a loss or even with a return that is not adequate and reasonable. But no company is justified in willful neglect of its property for the sole purpose of exacting higher rates from its patrons. The public pays a specified amount annually to take care of depreciation of the property. That money cannot legally be used for any other purpose. A utility in Indiana is treated fairly in this respect and such companies must come before the public for increases in rates with clean hands.

SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT.

The ruling that has been given by Acting Attorney General Frierson to Governor Roberts, of Tennessee, that the legislature of that state may legally be called for the purpose of ratifying the woman's suffrage amendment to the federal constitution, indicated that the long fight for equal suffrage is near an end. President Wilson, it is said, requested Governor Roberts to call the legislature in special session to ratify the amendment, but the Governor hesitated to take such action until he was assured that such a call would be legal. This assurance was contained in Frierson's ruling.

that the legislators on Tennessee will ratify the suffrage amendment. Ratification by one more state is all that is needed to make the amendment effective. Both political parties are hopeful that this privilege will be extended to women before the November election. Partial woman's suffrage is already provided in some states and the privilege ought to be uniform throughout the nation.

Tennessee will probably be the thirty-sixth state to ratify the amendment. There is every indication that the action will be taken soon. The country will welcome a final settlement of the fight which has been in progress for seventy years.

The "positive assertions" that some of the Democratic leaders are demanding for the Democratic platform will likely be qualified.

The fire works of the Democratic convention will be over before July 4th.

BURIED MONEY NEVER FOUND

Excavation in Kansas City Recalls Civil War Story.

PRIEST IS MADE CUSTODIAN

Fearing Raid Citizens Draw Money Out of Bank and Force Priest to Take Charge of It—He Buried It in Cemetery and Many Hours' Anxious Digging Later Failed to Unearth the Hidden Treasure.

Standing a few days ago at Twelfth and Broadway, I watched the workmen engaged in making an excavation for a new building on the south-east corner, and a story of the old Civil War days connected with the spot flashed into my mind—a mystery of buried treasure that remains unsolved to this day—and I wondered if a chance shovel of dirt might not then and there reveal the sequel. It is a story that was often told to me by the pioneer priest, Father Bernard Donnelly, whose resignation in his extreme old age as pastor of the old church at that corner was mentioned recently in the Star, the Rev. William J. Dalton writes in the Kansas City Star.

It was the eve of the battle of Westport in the fall of '64. Panic was in the air. Sterling Price of the Confederate army had won a victory over the Union troops under Mulligan at Lexington and rumors of the approach of his victorious army to attack Kansas City and Westport flew thick and fast. Before leaving Lexington, it was learned, he had seized on the money in the local banks and the fear was widespread that he would do the same thing when he reached Kansas City. There was a rush on the banks, accounts were checked out by hundreds of people and the money taken to their homes and concealed in various places. Then the thought occurred to many of them that perhaps their homes would be looted, too, and they began to look about for more secure hiding place. At that time Father Donnelly was Kansas City's "Vicar of Wakefield," known and trusted by everybody, Catholics and Protestants alike. He was known to be an old acquaintance of many of the Confederate leaders, and a friend of Gen. Price, personally known and respected by his soldiers as well. He had lived at Independence and Kansas City ever since the early forties.

Brought Money to Priest. It was known, too, that previous to his coming to Missouri his life, after leaving Ireland, his native country, had been largely south of the Mason and Dixon line. He had been an Irish patriot, too, in the homeland, and that meant a rebel. As a matter of fact, his natural sympathies were with the South. So the belief grew that Father Donnelly would be one man that would be immune from search by the invading army and the one man who could be trusted to conceal securely the threatened funds.

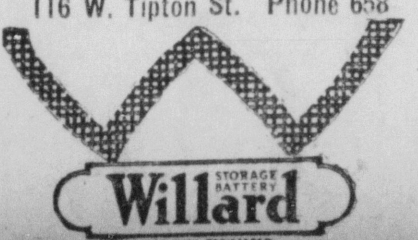

The afternoon before the battle of Westport hundreds of his own countrymen and church members, as well as a large number of others, came singly and in twos and threes up through the woods and the ravine that lay adjacent to the pastor's residence and church, bringing money in cans and bottles and purses and asking Father Donnelly to take care of it for them until the trouble was over. They felt certain that Price would not molest him. They knew that his ministrations as priest would be in demand

How to Get Good Glasses

Getting satisfactory glasses is only a matter of making a right start.

My service begins with a thorough scientific examination of your eyes. Then the facial measures are carefully taken. Then a size and style of lens and mounting are selected which are suited to your personal appearance and requirements.

My policy is to give a little bit more in dependable service than you pay for.

GLASS THAT CAN BE BENT

New Invention Declared to Be Suitable for a Number of Useful Industrial Purposes.

A new substitute for glass or for lacquer has been invented. It can be cut with shears or with a knife and, when heated to more than 100 degrees Centigrade, it forms a kneadable mass which resumes its previous hard state on cooling. It is known as "celion."

Under the patents of Dr. Elcheilgrun, a company is making celion in the form of a solid or liquid solution of acetyl cellulose in camphor, either white or colored, transparent or opaque. It appears in slabs, or tube form, as well as in the form of a plastic mass, as putty to be used for lagging purposes or as an anti-rust fluid.

The hard vitreous celion is bendable and sprays and insensitive to cold water, soap, fat, alcohol or petrol. When burnt in a flame it drops off like shellac, without, however, being as combustible as the latter. Celion varnish, which can be allowed to harden or solidify into flexible layers, is suitable for many industrial purposes. Liquid celion can be used for impregnating textiles or for making insulating tape. In this latter form it can be taken from the round box in which it is wound up, even in the moist condition, and allowed to harden in air.

USE FOR "TANKS" IN PEACE

French Have Put Frightful War Machines to a Variety of Highly Useful Occupations.

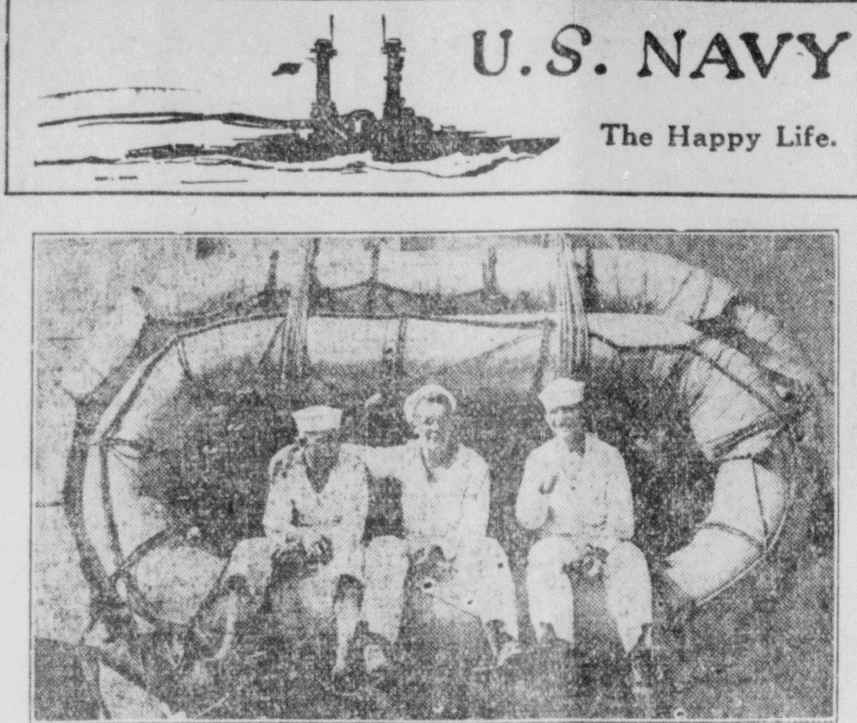

The French appear to be ahead of us in finding a use for tanks in peace times. A considerable number of French tanks which are comparatively small sized are now employed for transport purposes about the yards of large industrial works; others are used as farm tractors, while the larger tanks are replacing horses for traction along the wide paths of the great French canals.

The latest and perhaps the most remarkable employment which has been found for these machines is in connection with mountain climbing for tourists. For this purpose the armor, and of course all the fighting apparatus of the tank are removed and a carriage or superstructure capable of carrying from ten to twenty passengers added. The seating is either arranged longitudinally or crosswise. Very steep grades can be taken, while the machines easily cross small streams and make their way through brushwood, tall grass and over the roughest roads.

Japan's "Year of the Monkey."

Every year, in a series of 12, is known in Japan by the name of an animal, as in the signs of the zodiac; and this is the year of the monkey. Consequently the many millions of New Year cards exchanged were for the most part decorated with simian representations of various kinds. The year of the monkey is not considered a propitious one for marriage, as the word saru (monkey) also is a verb which means "to leave," and there is a superstition that all who marry in the monkey year are likely to leave their partners, who might otherwise be partners for life. Consequently all the couples who intended entering the married state in 1920 had to rush the ceremony through in December of 1919, keeping country registries and shrines very busy during that month. The post office had a gigantic task in delivering the hundreds of millions of New Year cards dispatched the day before the first of January.

Not worried very much about the High Cost of Living, are they? And why should they be? Jack gets the same amount of meat, sugar or potatoes at present day prices as when they cost only one-third as much.

And the Canteens on board sell him candy, cigars, tooth powder, shaving soap, and all his other needs at cost, plus only ten per cent profit. This profit goes into an athletic and entertainment fund, furnishing him with movie films, athletic equipment, and other play time necessities, for nothing.

It's a hard life; that's the reason the fellows in the picture look so worried.

A WOMAN'S TOUCH

By JACK LAWTON.

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

Delight gazed across the far-reaching fields as she leaned against the old fence that bordered the roadway. She was reviewing a little sadly the events of a fast changing year, when misfortune had followed misfortune until she had been obliged to close her own home and dispense with the companionship of the old nurse who had in her loneliness become her friend. Then Delight, in quest of necessary employment, had answered a strange advertisement.

There were so few things that her home life had fitted her to do the unusual advertisement seemed to have been especially written for herself.

Duncan Reynolds of "The Towers" required the services of a young woman who could give to his great abode the home atmosphere.

"I've servants enough," he said, "and a good housekeeper, but the place is like an institution. I want—" Delight fancied that the shrewd eyes softened—"I want a woman's touch, the right kind of flowers on the table, the sound of a piano at night maybe—I'm glad that you have applied for the position."

With her arms folded now on the fence rail Delight marveled that she had become an inmate and a necessary inmate of the great mansion on which she had looked with awe since the days of her childhood.

The errand old gentleman who was its occupant and owner had been regarded as a sort of ogre then.

The old nurse had told to Delight weird tales of the great house on the hill—how, long ago, maidens had feared the wealthy and handsome young Duncan as a suitor, because of his uncontrollable temper; and how at last he had gone upon a long visit, returning with a beautiful, gentle bride, who had lived but a few years like a prisoner behind the great house bars.

Delight, looking up to the center window of the tower, thought now of the gentle lady her nurse had described, and wondered if it was this woman's touch which the lonely man had missed throughout these years.

Last night Duncan Reynolds had searched her face with questioning eyes.

"Why didn't you marry?" he asked with his usual brusqueness.

"Why?" Delight had stammered, "I really don't know."

"You will make some man happy," he had said, and his rare smile crossed the lines of tiredness from his face; "do not miss your opportunity when it comes. My life has been one of disappointment. First I lost my wife, whom I have never ceased to love. Then the little girl. My daughter would have been about your age."

"Oh! I did not know," Delight sympathized, "that you had lost a daughter."

"—and a son," the old man added sharply.

And as she stood reviewing her year with its unexpected paths, she yearned to restore to him in his loneliness the joy he had known and lost. And she wondered a little wistfully if the happiness he spoke of would ever be her own.

Then suddenly Delight was roused from her musings. A horse, tearing down the twisting road, reared wildly and tossed from its saddle a man who lay stunned for a moment—at her feet. Instantly she had slipped under the bars and was lifting the injured man's head, when his eyes opened, looking up at her.

"Nothing seems to hurt but my ankle," the young man said at last. "If you can bear my weight on your shoulder I'll try to stand up and see how bad that is."

"Pretty bad," he gasped, white-lipped after the effort.

"You had better rest back on the ground," Delight suggested, while I run over to The Towers and send a groom to help you."

"The Towers?" the young man exclaimed, "what are you doing there?"

His suffering was so evident that she ignored the rudeness and answered his question.

"I am sure they will look after you over at The Towers," she added kindly, "if you will let me go for help."

"Is the great master there as savage

"MY REVENGE IS NOT SAVAGE AT ALL," Delight indignantly retorted; "he is a lonely old man who has acquired understanding through sorrow."

She told Duncan Reynolds of their enforced guest that evening.

"They have put him in the blue room," she said; "the doctors said his injury would not permit him to be moved further."

Impatiently her employer turned to descend the stairs. Long after she heard him calling to her from the hall; Delight wondered, as she responded, at the change in the old man's face. Its grim lines seemed all at once to have changed to tenderness.

"The young man up there," he said slowly, "is my son; we quarreled years ago, and the boy ran away. That is how I lost him. He has been afraid to come back. Something you said today changed his mind. I thank you. For all the kindness of your woman's touch I cannot thank you. Perhaps happiness may be on its way as your reward, even as my happiness comes today."

"My boy wants to see you," Duncan Reynolds said. "Will you go up to him?"

And smiling back into the father's face Delight ran up the stair.

SOCIAL EVENTS

REBEKAHS.

The L. O. O. F. Hall was the scene of an elaborate social affair Thursday evening when the Greens, under the leadership of Mrs. J. H. Husted, entertained the winners, the Pinks, as a result of a contest which was recently closed. The contest has been conducted for the last six months by the members of the Rebekahs and a number of new members have been secured.

The officers and members of the Franklin degree staff were invited here to have charge of the degree work. Thirty-eight members of the Franklin train arrived here on the 4:52 Pennsylvania train and were taken direct to the L. O. O. F. Hall, where an elaborate banquet was served. The dining room was elaborately decorated in pink and green and the dining tables were a bower of cut flowers. The guests were seated at one large table and one smaller side table.

The out-of-town visitors included Mrs. Ethel Hemphill, president sixteenth district, Mrs. Minnie Liebbrand, district secretary and treasurer, both of Franklin, J. P. Reed, degree captain, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Parkhurst, Mrs. Victor Berzen, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gross, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Backworth, Mrs. Lou Ragdale, Mrs. Clara Kistley, Mrs. Iva Herriot, Mrs. Sarah Bradshaw, Mrs. Hattie Cox, Mrs. Maude Kersey, Mrs. Agnes Hunter, Mrs. Hattie Terhune, Mrs. Addie Howell, Mrs. George L. Tucker, Mrs. Alice Bridges, Miss Nannie Jordan, Miss Jessie Caplinger, Miss Anna Chessis, Wm. Lee and E. F. Walden, of Franklin, Misses Alta and Georgia Poe, of Edinburg, Miss Elizabeth Michealsen, Michigan City, Miss Eva Day, Hayden, Mrs. George Van Hoy, Mrs. W. H. Sanders, and Mrs. Ed Drens, Shoals, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. McCord, Brownstown.

During the business session the class of candidates was initiated by the Franklin degree staff and officers in a beautiful manner. The lodge room was elaborately decorated in green, the color of the losing team which had charge of the evening's entertainment. The members of the winning team, the Pinks, were in charge of serving the banquet in the early evening.

The members of the Green team wore large green fern leaves and green caps with large white pom-poms and the pinks wore Dorothy Perkins roses on their left shoulders.

During the evening refreshments of brick ice cream, home made cake and coffee were served.

About one hundred and sixty person attended during the evening and the local lodge members were highly complimented by the visitors for their entertainment.

Arrangements were made for stopping the 11:51 Pennsylvania train at Franklin for the accommodation of the visitors.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Mrs. William Brackemeyer, Redding township, was hostess Thursday afternoon to the members of the Trinity Methodist Missionary Society.

An interesting program was carried out, consisting of a vocal duet by Mrs. C. R. Hoffmann and Mrs. G. C. Borcharding, a reading by Mrs. George Winkhofer, a duet, by Mrs. C. R. Hoffmann and Mrs. B. E. E. Fischbach, and a reading, "Study of Japan" by Miss Eva Thieksten. Mrs. L. F. Miller had charge of the lesson study. At the close of the regular business, refreshments were served.

The guests were Mrs. Mary Ballman, of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Wm. Reber and Mrs. Wilhelmina Benzel.

AID SOCIETY.

A social meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Lutheran church was held Thursday afternoon in the club house. About one hundred were present.

Musical numbers were given by a ladies' quartet composed of Mrs. John Alberring, Mrs. Louis Aufferberg, Mrs. Everett Ault and Miss Amelia Brand. They were accompanied on the piano by Miss Brand. A reading was given by Mrs. Everett Ault, a vocal solo, "The Lord is My Shepherd," by Mrs. John Alberring. Prizes in a bean contest were awarded by Mrs. Adolph Steinwedel and Mrs. Carl Brunow, Sr., an in a corn guessing contest to Mrs. Charles Nolting and Mrs. Albert Ahlbrand.

A luncheon was served.

Mrs. Carl Breitfield, Indianapolis, and Mrs. Clarence Alva, of Logansport, were out-of-town guests who were present at the meeting.

STRAW RIDE.

More than fifty members and friends of the Chos and C. C. Classes of the St. Paul Congregational church went on a straw ride to the home of Miss Minnie Quade, in Hamilton township, Thursday evening.

The time was delightfully spent with "aviation" music and games. Refreshments were served.

CLASS PICNIC.

The Semper Fidelis Class of the First Methodist church enjoyed a delightful picnic given at the Shields Park, Thursday evening. A picnic supper was served at 6 p. m. after which the evening was spent in games, music and a burlesque program.

ATTEND PARTY.

Sixteen members of the Loyal Devoir Society of the Central Christian church went to Columbus Thursday evening to attend a party given by Mrs. William Wells. Mrs. Wells formerly resided in this city and was president of the society.

The Wells home was attractively decorated with bouquets of spring flowers and the time was spent in a pleasantly informal manner. A delicious luncheon was served.

The members of the society who enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. Wells were Mrs. Joe Gruber, Mrs. Clarence Goss, Mrs. J. H. Niles and daughter, Louise, Mrs. Carl Meyer, Mrs. H. A. Stewart, Mrs. Charles Wallace, Mrs. Scott Everhart, Mrs. F. W. Wesner, Mrs. J. E. Hamer, Mrs. W. E. Carroll, Mrs. Clifford Kern and son, Stanley, Mrs. J. R. Parkhiser, Mrs. Mary Crane, Miss Elsie Reynolds and Miss Grace Love.

ANNUAL PICNIC.

The members of the Friday Magazine Club enjoyed their annual picnic today in Brown county. The trip was made in automobiles. A picnic dinner was served at noon.

Among those making the trip were: Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Billings and son, Mrs. Louisa Schneck, Mrs. O. S. Guernsey, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hancock, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Able and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Able, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Swope, Mrs. C. L. Kessler, Mrs. C. D. Hopewell and son, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Hagan, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Pfaffenberger.

AID SOCIETY.

The Catholic Ladies Aid Society met Thursday evening in the K. of C. Club rooms. Refreshments were served. The hostesses were Mrs. Nick Hauerperger, Mrs. John Fox and Mrs. Henry Werning.

CHICKEN DINNER.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fluterjohn, Waymansville, entertained with a six o'clock chicken dinner Thursday evening. The guests from this city included Miss Maude Prather, Miss Emma Frederick and Albert Vogel.

DANCE.

Miss Justine Leas, Miss Mildred Nichter, Miss Elsie Reynolds, Frank Weller, Guy Harris, Honan Willman, Albert Slagel and Sam Abbott, of this city, attended the Japanese Moonlight Dance given Thursday in the L. O. O. F. Hall at Columbus.

The Answer to Your Three Necktie Problems

If you are "a regular fellow," the first thing you think of when you buy a necktie is the color. Then "How it is going to look when tied?" and last—"will it wear?" You will get a satisfactory answer to all of these questions in the new Japanese narrow-shape ties which we are now showing. Moreover they "go" with the new collar shapes mighty well.

JUDGE L. M. HARVEY SUCCUMBS TO APOPLEXY

Member of Indiana Supreme Court Expires After Few Hours' Illness.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, June 25—Lawson M. Harvey, associate justice of the Indiana supreme court, died at 10:30 o'clock today from apoplexy.

Judge Harvey had been ill but forty-eight hours. He collapsed Wednesday in his office in the state house and was rushed to his home. Up to his last minute physicians held out hope for his recovery. The judge improved rapidly since he was stricken but today, however, he suffered a relapse and he sank rapidly. Death was due to a hemorrhage, according to physicians who attended him. Judge Harvey was elected to the supreme court in 1916 following a legal career covering thirty-seven years. He was born in Plainfield in 1856. He is survived by a widow and two sons.

TURNING TABLES

By PEARL B. MEYER.

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Aunt Jane leaned over an open chest in the garret.

"What's this?" she queried, hauling out some white material.

Beckie, her niece, drew her brows together.

"That's the bureau scarf I started last winter. You didn't like the pattern, so I dropped it."

"H'm," said Aunt Jane. "What's this?" She pulled out something gay with colors.

"Oh, that's the table runner. I got so sick of it I never finished the thing."

"H'm. And this?" Another article was brought to light.

"Goodness me. I started that shirtwaist over a year ago. I'd forgotten all about it."

"Since you were old enough to remember," commenced Aunt Jane, "I have tried to impress on you the value of finishing what you commence."

"Do what you set out to do. This applies to greater things than bureau scarfs and shirtwaists. If you know a thing is right, go ahead with it."

"But, auntie," interrupted Beckie, this time successfully. "How am I to know that I can trust my own judgment?"

"Your conscience will tell you."

Beckie, sitting humped over the toy of a trunk, pondered deeply.

"Then," she said finally, "if I start to do something that I am sure is right, I should not allow even you—even you, auntie—to swerve me from my purpose?"

"Exactly," returned her aunt, with a pleased nod. "Let's go down now. I want to take a nap."

The nap lengthened into a regular snooze. Aunt Jane was a sound sleeper. She was aroused finally by knocking on the door.

"It's half-past four," called Beckie. Aunt Jane arose hurriedly. Her simple toilet did not take many minutes.

Giving a final hurried dab at her tightly twisted pug of gray hair, she moved toward the door. To her astonishment, it was locked. She rattled the knob vigorously.

"Beckie," she called. "I'm so sorry," spoke a small voice close to the keyhole, "but I'm doing what you told me to do."

"Unlock this door," demanded Aunt Jane sternly.

"I can't."

"What do you mean?"

"Not until you promise me something," said Beckie meekly. "My heart tells me I am right. This is the only way. I've begged and begged and prayed; but you have always said no."

Aunt Jane's hands sank limply to her sides. Beckie had wittingly made her a prisoner.

"Beckie Stowell, let me out this instant."

"I will," came the pleading voice. "If you'll say that I may marry Dwight."

"Never," she raged. "Does that—that whippersnapper know you have done this?"

"No." In breathless haste. "I just asked him to come to supper tonight. I told him I had a real nice surprise for him."

"A real nice surprise," mimicked Aunt Jane; then, after a slight pause; "He will get it."

"Oh, auntie," Beckie's voice was full of tears—"then you can't come out. It's after five now. I've got to go downstairs."

Aunt Jane leaned weakly against the door, her thoughts in such turmoil that she was momentarily stricken dumb. The minister due at six. The table not set. The biscuits—. In an outburst of despairing rage, she beat on the door with her clenched fists.

"Beckie!" she shrieked. "Beckie!" No reply. From the distant downstairs came little clattering sounds as of dishes being moved.

"It's twenty minutes of six, Aunt Jane."

"My biscuits!" wailed Aunt Jane. "You wicked girl. I shall never forgive you as long as I live."

These bitter words evoked a little sob from the free side of the door. A terrifying idea flashed into Aunt Jane's mind. Did the girl mean she might run away? All her wrath was swept away suddenly in a flood tide of love. She could never think of Beckie other than a child. That was why she would never listen to her talk of marrying.

"It's ten minutes of six," pleaded Beckie. "Oh—I heard the gate click." There was a momentary quaver in her voice. "Aunt Jane—Dwight is so dear. Her voice sank to a breath."

The jangle of the door-bell rang through the house. But to Aunt Jane's heart, Beckie's whispered words sounded louder than did the bell to her ears.

"Beckie," she questioned, "are you sure you're right?"

"Yes," came the answer with a quick intake of breath.

"Then you shall have him, dear."

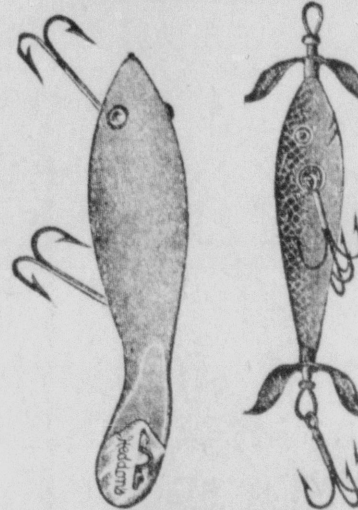

The key rattled in the lock. The door swung open. Aunt Jane and Beckie stood face to face. At that moment the door-bell rang most imperiously.

"My biscuits!" gasped Aunt Jane. Beckie's face was glowing with sweet joy. "Don't you worry about those biscuits," she laughed. "Do you imagine I didn't want my engagement supper to be a success. Just go out in the kitchen and smell 'em."

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Announcements have been received here of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. James Rumbley, of Brazil, Saturday. Mr. Rumbley is the son of Mrs. W. J. Rumbley, of this city, and he formerly resided here.

Mrs. Roxie D. Kessler has been granted a divorce from George Kessler, convicted murderer. The divorce was granted in Marion county on the grounds of Kessler's conviction for the murder of Miss Minnie May Wilkins in Indianapolis in May 1919. Miss Wilkins formerly lived in this city. Kessler is serving a life sentence at the state prison. Mrs. Kessler professed faith in her husband's innocence and testified in his behalf at his trial on the murder charge, but after he had been convicted and sentenced she brought suit for divorce.

RIGIDLY EXCLUDE FRESH AIR

French Seemingly See No Reason Why It Should Ever Be Admitted to Bedroom.

Europeans do not like fresh air, writes Theodore Roosevelt in Average Americans. They feel a good deal like the gentleman in Stephen Leacock's story who said he liked fresh air, and believed you should open the windows and get in all you could. Then you should shut the windows and keep it there. It would keep for years.

I have been in many rooms in France where the windows were nailed shut. The beds also are rather remarkable. They are generally fitted with feather mattresses, and feather quilts. Very often they are arranged in a niche in the wall like a closet, and have two doors, which the average European, after getting into the bed, closes, thereby rendering it about as airy and well ventilated as a coffin.

I remember my own billet in one of the towns where we stopped. As I was commanding officer, it was one of the best and was reasonably warm. It was warm because the barnyard was next door, literally in the next room, as all that separated me from a cow was a light deal door by the side of the bed. The cow was tied to the door. When the cow slept I slept; but if the cow passed a restless night I had all the opportunity I needed to think over my past sins and future plans.

In another town an excellent billet was not used by the officers because over the bed were hung photographs of all the various persons who had died in the house, taken while they lay in that bed.

FEAR SPREAD OF BLINDNESS

Scientists Alarmed by Reports From the Oasis Towns of the Great Sahara Desert.

A plague of blindness is sweeping the oasis towns of the Sahara desert, according to a dispatch received at Washington from Biskra. Dr. Toulant, of the Pasteur Institute of Optalmology, who is conducting experiments on a herd of camels in an effort to isolate the germ which is blinding tens of thousands of Arabian children. With Biskra, "the Garden of Allah" oasis, as their headquarters, they tour the desert on camels, visiting the oasis town where the plague is at its worst.

With the approach of the hot months it is feared the disease will become even more widespread. The filth of the oasis towns and the uncovered camel meat market breed countless millions of flies even during the winter months. Flies are believed to carry the germs of granular trachoma, with which in northern Africa 100,000 Arab children are infected.

The Man Who Wasn't Himself

By ROBERT AMES
BENNET

(Copyright, by W. G. Chapman)

Breakfast at Amy Lowrie's usual hour was far too early for Mrs. Kirkland. Clinton remained at the mercy of the young ladies. But he was quite submissive. He drank his cup of near-coffee without protest, and even went so far as to ask the dainty server for a second cup. In return the girls limited their demonstrations of affection to tender glances.

After the meal he at once excused himself on the plea of letter writing and withdrew to his room. He did not come out until midmorning, when, as had been agreed, Doctor Kirkland called to take him down to the bank. "Good morning, sir," he returned the physician's cordial greeting. "May I ask if you have telegraphed for news of Mr. Lowrie?"

"The message was sent last night." "Then you will probably receive the reply this morning?"

"Not nearly so soon—no. We shall hear not later than this evening, however."

Clinton looked gravely at Amy. "In that event please do not expect me for lunch. I shall wait until the telegram comes and you know I am not your brother. After that, if I may have the privilege—"

"What if the telegram is delayed until tomorrow?" she objected. "You promised to stay. You must come home for dinner at least, else we shall be frightened."

"Very well." He bowed, and before Ellen or her mother could speak he was out of the room.

A drive of a few minutes brought the car down to that solid and conservative bank, the Fourth National of Denver. As Clinton followed Doctor Kirkland in through the screen door an out hurrying business man paused to clap him on the shoulder and tell him he had come home looking fine and fit. Clinton nodded and passed on into the bank.

The big hawk-eyed guard, who was wandering about through the crowd, glanced at him and bowed. Again he nodded. On all sides men were recognizing him by smiles and nods. Some would have detained him with words of welcome and inquiries as to his long holiday. Doctor Kirkland saved him from the embarrassment of coherent answers by leading him briskly across to the desk of the cashier.

Benn, as fastidiously dressed as ever, was sitting within the inclosure. At sight of Clinton he sprang to open the gate, with a cordial: "Ah, here you are! Come right in. You, too, Doctor Kirkland."

"Must go back to my office," replied the physician. "Can stop only to endorse Mr. Clinton's draft if that is necessary."

"Not at all," said Benn. "I've explained Mr. Clinton's odd resemblance to Mr. Lowrie. The draft will be cashed all right."

Clinton drew out his draft and endorsed it under the sharp gaze of the cashier without the slightest trace of hesitancy.

The cashier glanced at the ticket, handed it back to him, and turned to another customer. "The money will be sent in to you," he said in a brusque tone.

"His busy day, y'know," drawled Benn, signaling Clinton to come with him through the door behind the rail. "Cashier runs the bargain counter of a bank. Quite a bore, I take it. Give me the vice presidency. Stately leisure—all that, y'know."

Clinton stopped short, his fingers thrust into the fold of his waist. "It must have dropped out," he muttered. "What's that?" inquired Benn.

"The check for the suitcase. I must have dropped it."

"You did—last evening," replied Benn. "No doubt it fell out with your baggage checks. I must have been still a bit confused from that knockout blow when I picked them up. This morning I found the brass check in my pocket."

"Yes," said Clinton, holding out his hand.

Benn smiled slyly. "You'll pardon the liberty, I'm sure. I happened to be down at the depot, and thought you might like to have your suitcase up at the house."

"Thanks, Doctor Kirkland will hear today with regard to Mr. Lowrie, so I may be leaving tonight. But it was thoughtful of you."

"You think of leaving tonight?" protested Benn.

"The moment my identity is established I fancy neither Miss Kirkland nor Miss Lowrie will urge me to stay."

"I'd be glad to put you up in my digs until you've got in touch with people here," offered Benn.

If You Are Easily Tired Out, Your Blood Needs Purifying

Clogged-up Impurities Will Undermine Your Health.

The first symptoms are usually a loss of appetite, followed by a gradual lessening of energy. The system becomes weaker day by day, until you feel yourself on the verge of a breakdown.

This whole condition is but the result of impurities in the blood that show that nature needs assistance in giving the system a general housecleaning.

Nearly everybody just now needs a few bottles of S. S. S. to cleanse the system of impurities.

S. S. S. is without an equal as a general tonic and system builder. It improves the appetite and gives new strength and vitality to both old and young.

Lesson 13 June 27 Second Quarter

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REVIEW: THE NOBLE LIFE OF SAMUEL.—1 Sam. 12:1-5, 13-25
GOLDEN TEXT.—I will teach you the good and the right way.
1 Sam. 12:23.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL.—1 Sam. 12:1-16:22.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Stories About Samuel.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Boy Who Became a Great Man.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Strong Points in Samuel's Character.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Samuel's Service to His People.

The method of review must largely be determined by the teacher and the grade of the class. For the Junior and Intermediate grades a good way will be to make it biographical, centering in Gideon, Eli, Samuel, Eli's sons, Saul and David. Of course, the outstanding personality is Samuel.

For the older classes the following from Potomac's Select Notes is an interesting and profitable method:

"This review, suited to older classes only, will deal with difficult questions involved in or suggested by the various lessons of the quarter, questions that you may not have had time to discuss adequately during the quarter. Assign one of these to each student, and divide the time evenly among them. The following list of topics may prove helpful, but it is intended to be only suggestive:

Lesson I. How to put religion into our state and national government.

Lesson II. How to utilize better than we are doing the power of women.

Lesson III. How to bring together and use the righteous and brave minority.

Lesson IV. How to single out and help the deserving poor.

Lesson V. How to develop the religious capacities of children.

Lesson VI. How to open the eyes of parents to their children's faults.

Lesson VII. How to bring to bear upon public questions the decisive power of prayer.

Lesson VIII. How to select the best leaders in church and state.

Lesson IX. How to develop individual initiative without the loss of discipline.

Lesson X. How godly men may influence the progress of affairs.

Lesson XI. How to inspire children with lofty ideals.

Lesson XII. How to make our lives serene and trustful.

A plan which can be adapted to all grades is the gathering of the main facts of each lesson and then stating its leading lesson.

The following are suggestions as to the leading lessons:

Lesson for April 4. As Jesus joined the disciples on the way to Emmaus, so he joins all who are journeying life's way in sorrow and says, "Tell me your troubles and perplexities." He wants us to confide in him.

Lesson for April 11. Deborah's judgeship shows that a woman is capable under God not only of the administration of justice, but of leading a nation forth to victory in time of war.

Lesson for April 18. The secret of Gideon's victory was his faith. The ground of his faith was God's word.

Lesson for April 25. Because Ruth forsook country, friends, and her gods for the true God, she has been accorded a place of honor in the ancestry of Christ.

Lesson for May 2. Because Samuel was given in answer to a mother's prayer and was dedicated by her to the Lord's service, the Lord was able to use him in a large way.

Lesson for May 9. Parental indulgence results in the shame and ruin of both Eli and his sons.

Lesson for May 16. When God's people repent of their sins and turn to him for pardon he will not only forgive, but will fight their battles and give victory.

Lesson for May 23. When the people took their eyes off God, their King, they desired a man as King in conformity to the practice of the heathen round about.

Lesson for May 30. Because Jonathan felt the call of God to deliver his people and waited for God's sign for him, he was able to go forward and win a victory in such a way as to show that God was with him.

Lesson for June 6. Because Saul disobeyed the command of God, judgment from the hand of God fell upon him.

Lesson for June 13. God looketh not on the outward appearance, but on the heart; his choices are not arbitrary.

Lesson for June 20. "The Lord is my shepherd. I shall not want."

LESSON TEXT FOR SUNDAY, JULY 4.
DAVID IN CAMP AND COURT. 1 Sam. 17:1-18:16.

Clinton met the cordial invitation with a frank smile and an equally frank refusal. "That's good of you. But with the town determined to believe I'm Mr. Lowrie and the young ladies annoyed at finding I'm not, it will be a bit too uncomfortable."

"An, yes," murmured Benn, and he knocked softly at a door. "Here is the office of the vice president."

A bland, elderly gentleman opened the door. Benn introduced Clinton to him, and declined the vice president's invitation to enter, with the excuse that he wished to chat with one of the assistant cashiers. Clinton sat down with the vice president, who remarked casually on his strong resemblance to Will Lowrie, and started a witty conversation.

Benn, meantime, had gone through the inclosure of the first assistant cashier into the office of the bank president, a small, cold-eyed, correct banker. Benn slipped into a chair at the financier's elbow and murmured concisely: "No trace of the key in the suitcase, sir. I saw his baggage checks and noted the numbers. His trunks went on to the coast. Wired Frisco for them to be watched and held, if necessary. The probability is that he has the key on his person. He has changed suits to one he wore last summer, to which, no doubt, he has shifted the key."

"Get it," said the president.

"At the first opportunity, sir. I do not think it best to show our hand until we have our proofs—or he attempts to leave town."

A cipher telegram was handed in to the president. He unlocked his secret code book, translated the telegram, and stated inconspicuously to Benn:

"Richard Clinton, forty thousand, First National, Chicago. Main deposits: draft on First National, Boston, for twenty-five thousand, in May, and check of International Security Bonds company for fifteen thousand, five days ago."

Benn smiled excitedly. "That clinches it. He took some or all of the bonds out of the safe deposit box when he went east; sold some, and deposited the proceeds in the Boston bank. To cover up he transferred his account to the Chicago bank, in May, under the name of Clinton. On his way home he sold more of the bonds—fifteen thousand dollars' worth—to this Security Bonds company. I must confess that I have had my doubts whether he was not right in his claim of mistaken identity."

"All that is immaterial, Benn," curtly stated the president. "The next step is to locate the unsold bonds."

"Yes, sir. That is what I had in

"He Has Changed Suits." mind. He lunch at the club. In vino veritas, y'know."

The president made a slight gesture of assent and dismissal. Benn rose and bowed himself out as if he had been making a social call.

as a guest to one of your own clubs. Come and be introduced to some of your fellow members."

Clinton responded with the quizzical look that indicated a decided streak of waggery in his present personality: "All right. I'm with you."

The answer put Benn into the best of humor. His geniality became rather forced, however, when at luncheon Clinton not only refused wine but persisted in talking on impersonal topics. This last may have been due either to the reticence of good breeding or to a consciousness of guilt, or to an antipathy toward Benn.

When they left the club Benn suggested that they stroll over to the Athletic Club.

They entered the dressing room, where Benn signed to the attendant in charge. "Open Mr. Lowrie's locker, will you, Jones? He has forgotten his key."

"Lowrie?" muttered Clinton.

"Saves an awkward explanation, y'know," replied Benn. "You'll need only the shoes; but it's as well for you to stow your coat and hat in the locker they think is yours."

A few minutes later the two, stripped to their sleeveless undershirts, were facing each other in one of the boxing rooms. The instructor, who had greeted Clinton as "Mr. Lowrie," was even quicker than had been Benn to note his splendid muscular development.

Benn paused a moment after Clinton took position. The latter edged closer to him. Benn dropped his hands.

"Wait!" he said sharply. "That mark on your arm."

Clinton twisted the arm around. "What do you mean? I see no mark."

"Nor do I. That's just it," rejoined

Benn. "It's not there now. You know, Red—the brownish blotch—birthmark."

"Sure," agreed the instructor, starting curiously. "Have you been to a beauty doc, Mr. Lowrie?"

Clinton looked at the two with a quizzical smile. "You say I used to have a birthmark on my arm?"

"Size of a dollar, on the outside, three inches below the elbow," concisely stated Benn.

"And now it is not there," remarked Clinton. He held the arm out to the instructor.

"That's a slick job, Mr. Lowrie," the man commented. "No scar; no sign it was ever there. How'd you do it?"

For the first time since midafternoon the shadow of doubt in Clinton's eyes gave place to a twinkle. "It's a process not yet fully understood," he answered. "In a few days, however, I may be able to explain it."

"A very few days, I hope," added Benn.

He put up his hands in response to Clinton's resumption of boxing position, and they began a lively round of sparring. He started a trifle slow, as if his thoughts were not entirely centered on the contest. This was succeeded with a burst of speed that would have disconcerted even some professional boxers. Clinton met it with a cool ring generalship that frequently put his more agile adversary at a disadvantage.

At the end of the round, provoked that he had come out second best, Benn called for another. Clinton shook his head. "I am warm enough already," he said.

"Very well," assented Benn. "We'll call it off for this time. How about a swim?"

"Just a shower," said Clinton. "I wish to go out and learn if Doctor Kirkland has heard."

OLD RESIDENT NEAR DEATH

"I had not eaten food for 10 days and was slowly starving to death. Given up by five doctors, I tried a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which gave relief at once. I am 75 years old and would have died but for your wonderful remedy. The jaundice is all gone and I am gaining appetite and strength every day." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. All druggists.

SUE'S MONUMENT

By AGNES G. BROGAN.

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)
Miss Sue, seated before the fire, unlocked an old box fragrant of sandalwood, and counted her savings over in the lamplight.

With what sacrificing each penny had been put aside, only she knew; Susan Trent's youth had been spent caring for an invalid parent, and when at last she was left alone in the world, it was to find herself apparently forgotten by neighbors and friends whose lives were filled with their own newer interests or cares.

Sitting upon the porch on a summer's evening with laughter and merrymaking coming to her distantly she wondered what one might do to be appreciated—to be remembered or missed when one was gone.

It was a part of her faithfulness to go each week to the hill cemetery to put flowers upon her family graves marked with their modest stones. And this was Sue's plan. When she was gone forever, she would leave a monument to mark her resting place. A noble stone with her name standing boldly out upon it, so when strangers must pass, they would stop to read a record of her own unappreciated life. "She hath done what she could," they would read, and thus she would not die wholly unrecognized and unknown.

The money from the selling of her tiny home would not more than pay debts and expenses; the saving for the monument must be a separate thing, and Sue began at once. As time passed, adding to this store was her greatest pleasure, and in her strange, absorbing endeavor Sue became each day more brusque and forbidding. She wondered caustically why neighbors who smiled freely at each other passed her with a nod.

"Susan Trent has always been queer," they said, but it was well Miss Sue did not hear.

Upon this certain evening as she returned the money to the sandalwood box the front door of Miss Sue's house burst suddenly open and a child stood in its frame.

"I want to come in," the little girl announced. She hugged a kitten in her arms and raindrops glistened on her own curly hair. "Traddles and I are wet, we want to sit by your fire."

"Land sakes!" ejaculated Miss Sue. "where'd you come from? Why don't you go and sit by your own fire?"

"Haven't got any own home any more," the child said reproachfully. "I'm staying round the neighbors while mother's in the hospital. I ran up this way after Traddles, he was on your porch. Traddles always runs away now; he doesn't like staying with neighbors. My name is Joy."

She divested herself of cap and cloak as she talked.

"Land sakes!" murmured Miss Sue. The wet kitten had been carefully deposited in a chair. Then as she waited uncertainly, Joy, with a sigh of great content, climbed into Miss Sue's arms and rested her curly head against her unbending shoulder.

"It's nice here," she said happily. "You're a new neighbor, too, aren't you? I'm going to stop this night with you."

"What's your father thinkin' about?" Susan indignantly exclaimed, "letting a child run around this way, when her mother's in the hospital?"

"Daddy's in a hospital, too," Joy said, "over in France—where he was shot. He's been gone so long, he doesn't even know about mother's sickness."

"Mother fell down the high stairs from the room where we went to live after Daddy went away. An' she's been hurt so long that every bit of our money is gone. So that's why she had to go to the hospital, an' the neighbors are looking after me. Mother will never walk straight again; it's her hip, you know—unless she has an operation."

"Why don't they do it then?" Miss Sue burst out. She had been listening breathlessly.

Joy shook her head. "Only one doctor knows how," she answered, shrewdly, "an' folks without money can't send away for big doctors."

"I want to stay with you," Joy murmured drowsily. "I love you."

As Miss Sue tucked the child into her own white bed, her hands trembled, and later that night she sat, her sharp eyes softened still with their tender mist, when the dragged kitten confidently cuddled to her side, Miss Sue smiled, and the smile erased the tired lines of years.

"That brave, wounded man over there," she whispered, "an' his brave wife keepin' her suffering a secret; that homeless lamb wanderin' around in the rain, an' me, Sue Trent, savin' for a monument after I'm dead!"

It was several days afterward when Joy ran down to meet her friend. "You've been gone so long," she greeted. "Traddles an' I has watched an' watched."

Miss Sue caught the little girl to her breast. "Dearie," she said, "I've been down to the hospital to see your mother an' that big doctor is comin' to operate tomorrow; after it's all over, your mother an' you's goin' to stay with me here till daddy comes back. I bin investin'." Miss Sue smiled tremulously, "in a sort a new kind of monument."

"What's a monument?" asked Joy. "Reckon," she said, "it's somethin' folks 'll always remember you by—after you're dead."

BODY OF LEO PLUNKETT IS SHIPPED TO UNITED STATES

Brother of Mrs. Clarence Brown, of This City. Expected to Arrive at New York on July 8.

Word has been received here by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Plunkett, of Pearl street from the war department at Washington, D. C., informing them that the body of their son, Private Leo Plunkett, who died in service at Brest, during the world war, is on the way to this country and will arrive in New York City on or about July 8.

Private Plunkett was one of the first boys of this country to join the colors and was one of the first to make the supreme sacrifice. He enlisted with the colors during the summer of 1918 and in September of the same year after being at Camp Merritt, N. J., for four weeks sailed for overseas duty. On the way over he was taken ill of influenza and at Brest was taken from the boat in a serious condition and placed in a hospital at that place. Five days after he died, his death being due to influenza.

Private Plunkett was 32 years old, and besides his parents he leaves his wife who lives at Indianapolis, two brothers, John and Thomas Plunkett, of this city, and two sisters, Miss Mary Plunkett here, and Mrs. Clarence Brown of Seymour.—Columbus Republican.

In loving remembrance of Elizabeth Starnes, who departed this life, one year ago today, June 25, 1919: Off and off our thoughts have wandered.

To a grave so far away,
Where we laid our dear grandmother
Just one year ago today.

Many local people have trouble with birds destroying their cherries and have tried various ways to keep the birds from the trees. Dr. John T. Freeland, of Bedford, experienced the same trouble and at the suggestion of a friend he coiled a piece of rubber hose through some of the branches. The birds believe that the hose is a snake and pass the tree up. Dr. Freeland gets lots of amusement watching the consternation of the birds when they swoop down upon the tree and then hurriedly depart again.

Clarence Isaacs of Acme, was in the city today on business.

SAVE MONEY

ON YOUR

Painting Job

Use THRIFT PAINT, a paint in paste form. Thin with pure linseed oil and it is ready for use.

There is quite a saving to the manufacturer in putting up paint in concentrated form. It saves cans, labels, and packing cases. Beside, there is a considerable saving of labor by reason of having fewer cans to put up, label and pack.

When you buy THRIFT PAINT you are given the benefit of this saving.

1 gallon THRIFT PAINT costs..... $5.00
1 gallon Linseed Oil costs..... $2.50

This makes a total of $7.50 for two gallons paint, and brings the price of your paint, when ready for use, down to $3.75 per gallon.

THRIFT PAINT is supplied in fifteen different colors and white.
